

HIGHLAND COUNCIL ARCHIVE

CAMERON-HEAD of LOCHAILORT

After lengthy negotiations, this collection was transferred to Highland Council Archive on 15th June 1999, in accordance with the spirit of Mrs Pauline Cameron-Head's will. The papers had been boxed by National Archives of Scotland staff; Highland Council Archive staff compiled a generalised list of the contents of each of the 121 banker's boxes. Using this list, a scheme of arrangement was devised for a more detailed, though not exhaustive listing, comprising six broad categories:

- Public Bodies
- Estate and Property
- Business Interests
- Personal
- Voluntary and Charitable Organisations
- Roman Catholic Church.

However, quite unexpected discoveries (and to a lesser extent, clear evidence of the disappearance of some papers) attenuated the usefulness of this list. Hence some anomalies may be detected in the order in which papers have been arranged within the Personal and Estate categories.

Generally all papers (except those in the Public Bodies category) have been sorted into basic date order – before and after 1939. However, it has not been possible to sort papers into strict date order, nor to attempt sorting of correspondence between authors and origins, except in a very few cases. The collection now occupies 110 boxes, 1 photo folder and 3 outsize vols.

Considering the conditions under which the papers had been kept in later years, a rather small proportion, now occupying four banker's boxes, is in poor condition and in need of conservation.

Of the six categories, Personal and Estate and Property are the two largest. The former comprises the personal papers of two generations of the Cameron-Head family and, to a lesser extent of the previous Cameron generation (including Major General Sir Alexander Cameron who served under the Duke of Wellington), and includes diaries and notebooks, and an extensive collection of photographs. Almost all the people whose papers form this category were remarkable for their diligence in keeping every piece of paper that came into their possession, and (with one or two exceptions) for keeping copies of outward correspondence and committing to paper their thoughts and experiences. Apart from these core papers, others relate to several relations: the Gillespies (related to the Camerons by marriage), the Heads, the Farrells (Pauline's family), notably Mary Farrell (later Mrs Angelo the Mrs Beckett), and to a lesser extent the Becketts.

The Estate papers have been divided into three groups:

- up to 1890, relating mainly to Duncan Cameron's management of Inverailort
- 1890 to 1939
- 1939 to the early 1990s

This exceptionally detailed category reveals the fluctuating fortunes of a Highland estate. It also includes a relatively few papers relating to property in London and a remarkably large body of meticulously kept volumes and other documents concerning Culachy farm (run by Mary Angelo/Beckett), mainly for the period 1920 – 1950.

Among the Business Enterprises are papers concerning companies operating mainly between 1935 and 1950, concerned with development of the Highlands, and including Marine Harvest's establishment of a pioneering fish farm on Loch Eilt in Inverailort Estate.

Among the myriad of Voluntary and Charitable Organisations represented, a few stand out: the Girl Guides Association in Lochaber, and the Glenfinnan Games, of which Mrs Cameron-Head was convenor for many years.

A significant proportion of the Roman Catholic Church papers concern camps for young people held at Inverailort from the late 1940s.

The voluminous Public Bodies papers derive largely from Mrs Cameron-Head's services as an Inverness-shire County Councillor and on many Committees and Boards.

Apart from the obvious values of the collection for historical research indicated by the foregoing outline of their arrangement, many more specific subjects are covered. Among these are

- London and to some extent Highland society
- Breeding of pedigree West Highland terriers and of elkhounds
- Renovations and improvements at Inverailort House in the early 20th century
- Extension of the West Highland railway from Fort William to Mallaig
- Extension of local roads, especially the Moidart road
- The compulsory acquisition of part of Inverailort estate during World War I
- The Home Guard in the Highlands during World War II, and the requisition of Inverailort House
